1. Ungraded Assessments
 2. Graded Assessments

2. Ungraded Assessments

Ungraded tasks do not carry marks but are important for learning and indirectly help improve graded performance.

A. Practice Quizzes (Based on Videos)

- Given after each video.
- Provide practice on the concepts discussed.
- Example: A quiz may ask how many types of assessments exist.
- Help with revision, recall, and content understanding.

B. Discussion Questions

- Based on reflective questions raised in the videos.
- Students think critically and respond in writing.
- Questions may ask:
 - Why follow writing conventions?
 - Why use citation and referencing rules?
 - How is plagiarism harmful?
- Students also respond to peers' posts.

- Example: A peer may argue plagiarism isn't harmful if unnoticed; you may respond by highlighting ethics and academic integrity.

3. Graded Assessments

A. Graded Assignments

Two types:

- 1. Peer-graded assignment

- Usually involves a planning task, such as outlining an essay.

- 2. Instructor-graded assignment

- You write the full essay based on the given topic.
- Graded by the instructor or teaching assistants.

B. Graded Quizzes (Module-Based)

- Contain 10 questions per module.
- Cover multiple components from the entire module (not just one video).
- Fewer chances to retake compared to practice quizzes.
- Help measure your overall progress.

C. Term-End Examination

- Formal final exam with weightage.
 - Contains several questions to be completed within a fixed time.
 - Tests understanding of all major concepts from the course.

4. More Details on Key Assessment Types

Practice Quizzes

- Three quizzes per video.

 - Writing structures
- Completing these helps with memory and revision.

Graded Quizzes

- One graded quiz at the end of each module.
- Covers a combination of topics from multiple videos.

Graded Assignments

- Two assignments in total.
 - First: Planning stage for an essay (peer graded).
